Gospel: John 1:35-42

The direction of Epiphany (revelation) is now beginning to show itself. The first witness is John the Baptist whose witness is that he is not the Christ. Then as confirmation of that two of his disciples begin to follow Jesus and leave John. They in turn attract their friends creating an ever widening circle of faith, a circle which includes the readers of this bulletin. Christ's life and message stretches to the world and to the universe, no power can stop it.

Pope Benedict XVI warned politicians against undermining the foundations of democracy in their fight against terrorism. "Terrorism is a serious problem whose perpetrators often claim to act in God's name and harbor an inexcusable contempt for human life," Countries have a right to defend themselves, "but this right must be exercised with complete respect for moral and legal norms. Pope Benedict questioned how a nation or group could claim to be protecting democracy "if we threaten its very foundations" by acting unconstitutionally.
